REASON: The last time the Game Damage Program administrative rules were revised was March 2006. Since that time, various laws and department licensing procedures have changed that necessitate changes to these administrative rules. In addition, a program performance audit completed in May 2015 by the Legislative Audit Division offered several recommendations that suggest revision could best address those issues. An internal, ongoing program review conducted by agency staff has also identified various issues that can best be addressed through revision of current administrative rules.
